What is Household Hazardous Waste?

Products that are either toxic to the environment or to humans and are no longer needed or intended to be used are considered household hazardous waste (HHW). Examples of HHW include paint, stain, varnish, automotive fluids, household cleaners, and more. These types of products should NEVER be dumped down a drain, put in the trash, or spilled onto the soil. Improper disposal can cause air, water, and soil pollution. Drop off your HHW products for FREE at a mobile collection near you and we will recycle or dispose of them responsibly. Household waste only - no business waste will be accepted. Limit of 10 fluorescent bulbs per household. Limit 4 oil filters per household.
